to many people, but there seems no good reason to doubt that he told the truth when he said in substance that he preferred the ease and freedom of private life to the care of public office in the city of Washington, the winter climate of which city does not agree very well with him.

The Coming Fair.

It is the duty of this community above all other people to endeavor to make the State Fair a success. The chief profits earned by it will accrue to us. In great, on the other hand, should the enterprise fail to meet public expectation and have few visitors the shame will be upon us.

Such considerations as these should induce our citizens to be more active in promoting the work of the society. Of course, all of us wish to see a fine exhibition here, but it cannot be had without organization and labor, and we should not expect the society to do everything. Richmond ought to manifest her zeal and interest by assuring, on her part, a good exhibition. This done a satisfactory attendance will be secured. When the people of Virginia and adjacent States are informed that the Fair is worth seeing they will be prompt enough to give it their presence and the prices of the fine-ure were allways satisfactory to the planters.

DEMOCRATS AND ALLIANCE.

There is no time to lose in making political arrangements in the recent action of the state Alliance at Prince George Courthouse in refusing to send delegates to the Alliance Convention to be held at Cabin Point, Surry county, on the 1st instant, Mr. J. P. Williamson, who was appointed in absentia to the executive committee, resolution to that effect with authority to collect further subscriptions to the capital stock of the company and it is understood that the proposed delegates will set forth the advantages of Petersburg as a bright-to-bright market, and to induce the planters to make bright tobacco. During the year the company did much to enhance the bright-to-bright market here and the prices of the fine-ure were allways satisfactory to the planters.
